We are a group. Can we buy a ticket?

Yes. Groups can purchase a draw ticket, provided that the name of each person who has purchased the ticket appears on the entry ballot. If there is not enough space, simply appoint a representative of the group, then draw up a document signed by all parties stipulating that the ticket bearing the number XYZ belongs to the group represented by (name of representative). On the document, you must legibly write the names of all people belonging to the group, and they must sign it.

Unfortunately, no receipt is issued, because you have the chance to win a prize.

Draws and contests are governed by the Régie des Alcools et des Jeux du Québec (RACJ), which has very specific rules that we must respect. The purchase of raffle tickets does not constitute a donation under tax law. A donation must be an amount of money given without consideration. In the case of raffles, the consideration represents the chance of winning.
